Program of Opportunity for Women's Exploration and Realization

OVERALL APPROACH

The POWER of Self Program modules—six in all—take a whole-systems approach that one participant described as “leadership development with a heart.” Working from the inside out, the modules offer an extended learning experience in which to develop the three levels of leadership skills: individual, group, and organizational.

Individual

The training focuses first on individual power and offers the opportunity to appreciate one’s own unique qualities. Participants develop a common language with which to speak about their differences and create a safe environment to explore behaviors and beliefs about power. Each participant has the opportunity to gain valuable insights into her own views of authentic leadership.

Group

Individual work continues, but the focus shifts to the development of groups and teams. Participants begin creating a genuine community of women supporting women as they explore issues of inclusion, control, and openness, trust and betrayal, and “feminine” and “masculine” approaches to conflict, competition, risk and influence.

Organizational

Participants now learn to think systemically, experiencing the four roles of organizational life—“Top, Middle, Bottom and Customer”—that affect all leaders’ choices. Participants explore the dynamics of diversity and strategize ways to build powerful partnerships across organizational lines.

A partial list of participating companies includes: Accenture, Aramark, Birdville ISD, Boy Scouts of America, Chase Bank, Cisco, Choctaw Nation, Conference of Southwest Foundations, Dell, EY, Euless Public Library, Family Compass, Fidelity Investments, Frito Lay, Hitachi Consulting, HP, Hudson Foundation, IBM, Lake Worth ISD, LG Skychefs, Lumin Education, Mission Foods, NCR, Microsoft, Novus Academy, Pepsico, Sabre Holdings, Southwest Airlines, Texas Instruments, The Paper Plate, Think Finance, TXU, University of Texas-Dallas, United Way, and Westlake Academy

Personalized, Individual Coaching

Professional coaches will begin working with individual participants to help each woman develop a Learning Contract to focus her professional goals for the duration of the training. Then, throughout the program, coaches will provide one-on-one support as she applies each module’s content to the goals of her Learning Contract. To ensure sustainable change, coaches will continue to work with each woman for three months after the formal training ends.
